The European Research Center on Contemporary Taiwan (ERCCT) is jointly sponsored by the Chiang Ching-Kuo Foundation for International Scholarly Exchange and Eberhard Karls University Tübingen. It was inaugurated in June 2008 at a symposium that brought together Europe’s most renowned Taiwan scholars. The Center serves as a platform for doctoral and postdoctoral social science research on contemporary Taiwan and for promoting academic dialogue and cooperation between Europe and Taiwan. Good progress has been made towards institutionalizing the ERCCT and enhancing its standing in the scholarly community. This has been acknowledged by the Chiang Ching-kuo Foundation through a promotion of the ERCCT to one of only four CCKF Overseas Centers in July 2014. The center’s official appellation thus changed to European Research Center on Contemporary Taiwan – A CCK Foundation Overseas Center (CCKF-ERCCT). In addition to recruiting and hosting long-term and short-term research fellows and inviting a considerable number of established scholars to join the ERCCT as associate fellows, the Center’s main activities have been focused on

- inviting young talent from Europe and Taiwan, at both Ph.D. and postdoctoral levels, to visit and work at the Center on a long-term or short-term basis as research fellows;
- assisting research fellows in developing their projects and helping them to organize fieldwork in Taiwan;
- organizing public lectures and workshops on contemporary Taiwan held by well-known experts and emerging scholars from both Europe and Taiwan;
- expanding the Center’s international network by establishing links to renowned partner institutions in Taiwan;
- promoting the idea and mission of the Center by giving presentations at different European and Taiwanese universities;
- providing the international scholarly community with information on the Center’s multifaceted activities.\(^1\)

The international feedback which the ERCCT has received over the last twelve years has been consistently positive, encouraging those involved in its daily operations to work even harder to ensure its continuing success.
