Internships: BAföG, social insurance, minimum wage

What effects does an internship have on my BAföG entitlement? Do I then have to insure myself for social security? Do I get the minimum wage?
The answers to these questions depend on a number of conditions:
First, whether the internship is voluntary or compulsory and at what time (before, during or after your studies) you complete it.
In order to provide orientation and an overview, we have summarised the most important information briefly.

Requirements for a compulsory internship:

- Compulsory internship is an integrative part of a university education/study program → must be completed before or during university education/study

- Training character ⇔ a general practical professional activity (e.g. student trainee or HiWi job) does not meet the requirements for a compulsory internship

- Integrated part of university education/study ⇔ a completed education does not meet the requirements for a compulsory internship
  → Weighting (= duration, share of ECTS, qualifications to be acquired, etc.), is the responsibility of the higher education institution

- Framework conditions for content must be defined in the educational regulations of the relevant course (= study regulations)
  ▪ mandatory ⇔ a recommendation in the study regulations is not sufficient
  ▪ duration of compulsory internship (e.g. eight weeks, three months, one semester, ...)
  ▪ type of internship must be clear
  ▪ functional & content-related connection with the education/study at the university
    → e.g. learning objectives, regulations on concrete activities & qualifications to be acquired
