Internships: accident insurance

As a matriculated student at the University of Tübingen, am I insured against accidents while attending university courses?

Yes, because you are in the so-called "organisational area of responsibility" of the University of Tübingen and therefore covered by the accident insurance fund of Baden-Württemberg. This insurance cover applies to participation in university events (e.g. seminars, lectures and excursions) and the associated direct paths to and from the university.

As a matriculated student at the University of Tübingen, am I insured against accidents during a (compulsory) internship?

No, because, as a rule, you are then not in the "organisational area of responsibility" of the University of Tübingen, as the latter has no direct influence on the way in which the internship is carried out or on the procedure and content of the internship. It does not matter whether it is a compulsory internship (= provided for in the examination regulations) or a voluntary internship and/or the internship is completed at home or abroad.

Tip: For this reason, you should check with your internship office before starting the internship whether you have accident insurance for the duration of the internship in the company, in the organization, etc. and if necessary take care of private insurance.
