3-year Ph.D. position (E13 TV-L 13, 50%, f/m/div).

(The salary is about 33,000 to 37,400 euros/ per year, depending on work experiences.)

The Korean Department of the University of Tuebingen seeks to fill a Ph.D. position that will start on October 1, 2024.

The successful candidate will start a Ph.D. degree under the supervision of Professor You Jae Lee. Professor Lee is looking for a candidate with an excellent Master's degree in a field of Korean Studies and with a proficiency in qualitative methods in historical social science—e.g., oral history and historical analysis. Specific research interest in German Korean relations or Korean diaspora in Europe is preferred.

The candidate must be fluent both in English and Korean at an academic level. German is preferred, but not necessary. Qualified international students are strongly encouraged to apply.

During the period of funding, the Ph.D. candidate is expected to:

- 1) Teach one BA course per semester (2 hours per week)
- 2) Write a dissertation
- 3) Participate in organizational tasks of the Korean Studies Department

Applications should be composed in English and addressed to Prof. Lee. Applications will be accepted only in electronic form (PDF).

Please, submit the application to you-jae.lee@uni-tuebingen.de and on the subject line of the email write "Application for the Korean Studies PhD Position." (Please, contact Prof. Lee in case of any further inquiries.)

Applications should consist of the following documents: 1) Cover Letter 2) Curriculum Vitae, 3) One (1) Writing Sample or Master Thesis 4) MA & BA Degree Certificates.

The application deadline is May 15th, 2024.

The university aims to increase the share of women in research and teaching and therefore strongly encourages qualified female scientist to apply for this position. Severely disabled applicants with the same qualification will be given preference.

The appointment is made by the central administration of the University of Tübingen.
