What was the role of the military in Jair Bolsonaro (2019-2022) foreign policy formulation? In this talk based on her contribution to the forthcoming Routledge Handbook of Populism and Foreign Policy, Erica Resende explores how Bolsonaro's populist foreign policy was influenced by Brazilian military thinking, and identifies the ideological elements associated with a worldview developed by the Brazilian armed forces during the Cold War.

Erica Resende is Assistant Professor of International Relations and Security Studies at the Brazilian War College, Rio de Janeiro, and is President-Elect of the ISA Latin American and Caribbean Region. She is currently a Visiting Professor at Sciences-Po, Paris.
