CERTIFICATE GENDER AND DIVERSITY

To be acquired as part of the key qualifications

08/2025

Gender and Diversity

How people are treated differently based on their gender, social and cultural background, appearance or behaviour and what opportunities for social participation they have is largely determined by our ideas about various aspects of gender, sexuality, ethnicity, disability, etc. Various academic disciplines deal with these processes of social and cultural differentiation. They ask how our knowledge of 'gender' and other categories of social and cultural difference comes about and how it influences our actions and coexistence.

The certificate "Gender and Diversity" is designed to enable students to engage academically with gender and social diversity as interdisciplinary topics and research approaches. The aim is to understand 'gender' and 'diversity' as categories that have a history, are subject to change and have profound consequences for the lives of individuals and groups.

The certificate "Gender and Diversity" is offered by the Center for Gender and Diversity Research (ZGD) in cooperation with the section Transdisciplinary Course Program and Career Service (TRACS) at the University of Tübingen. The ZGD is an interdisciplinary and interfaculty research center that acts as an interface and initiator for gender and diversity research at the University of Tübingen.

You will receive an ungraded detailed certificate with information on the topics covered.

How do I obtain a certificate?

A total of 15 credit points must be earned in order to obtain the certificate:

1. Basic Module

Participation in the seminar "Introduction to Gender and Diversity Studies" (ZGD; in English; 6 CP)

2. Elective Module

In the elective area, students can choose from various courses in the field of gender and diversity offered by the different departments of the university and the Transdisciplinary Course Program (TCP). In addition, a limited number of academic events organized by the ZGD can also be credited. A total of 9 CP should be taken in the elective area.

The range of courses that can be credited towards the "Gender and Diversity" certificate can be found on the website of the Transdisciplinary Course Program (TCP).

By arrangement, relevant courses from other university institutions can also be credited.
